servant of all.

"Can we apply this gospel in the year 1907? By no means; the program would be too radical. The strife of commercial life, the pomp of kings and lords, the folly and snobbery of the world of society, the pitiful waste of standing armies and navies will continue to evidence our human imporfections. But the ground of Levus imperfections. But the gospel of Jesus and universal gospel of the prophet souls of the ages of which it is a part will speak to our higher selves. In the true home and in every circle of genuine felowship it will be the practical guide of action. The progress of humanity and the only true progress is toward the attain-ment of that ideal social state which shall based on the fellowship of love. As we slowly move toward this land of ideals the gospel of Jesus lights us on our way."

Consumption Cured.

Foley & Co., Chicago. Dana, Ind. Gentlemen:—Foley's Honey and Tar cured me of Consumption after I had suffered two years and was almost desperate. Three physicians failed to give me any relief and the last one said he could do me no good. I tried almost every medicine I heard tell of without benefit, until Foley's Honey and Tar was recommended to me. Its effect right from the start was magical. I improved steadily from the first dose and am now sound and well, and think Foley's Honey and Tar is a God-send to people with Throat and Lung Trou-ble. Yours very truly, MRS. MARY AMBROSE.

The presenting company is inadequate. Duncan Penwarden as Little Fox deserves mention for his work. He plays conscientiously and well and deserves a better vehicle. Dorothy Grey, as Pemnena fails to realize the possibilities of the role. The remainder of the company fill their several roles to the best of their ability.

The Lyric Stock company opened the week in "A Fight for a Fortune" to a crowded house last evening and the presentation took well with the patrons of the house. The old melange of tragedy, comedy, a much-wronged heroine, a handsome hero and a thrilling story is this story of "A Fight for a Fortune," and it is a melange which tickles the palate. C. E. Gillham, as Ebenezer, the plantation darky, carried the humorous honors of the evening. Alan Ellmore as mors of the evening. Alan Elmore, as General Mark Lester, caught the crowd, but shared applause with Tony West as Gregory Grimes. The admirers of Adelaide Knight found her as winning as ever in the part of Olive Glynn. Citizens Object to Recent Report Sent Out Concerning Sanitary Conditions. Provo, Dec. 39.-About fifty representa-tives citizens of Provo met yesterday aft-erncon at a meeting cailed by President Irvine of the Provo Commercial club to consider the matter of an item that appeared in one of the Salt Lake morning papers, to the effect that Mayor Frisby and City Physician Slater of Provo had called for assistance in enforcing the health laws, and had reported that in six suits filed against offenders by the health officers, here, three had been tried and acquittals secured, and the report went on to say: "It is admitted by all concerned that the nuisances complained of are unsanitary and dangerous to the public health." This under the headline, "A Cry for Help," excited the Provo people, and the meeting was called. Dr. F. E. Clark, who came down yesterday morning as a respresentative called. Dr. F. E. Clark, who came down yesterday morning as a respresentative of the state board of health, and Mayor Frisby, were present. Dr. Slater was not. It is said he was not invited. President Irvine stated the object of the meeting. Dr. Clark was asked about the origin of the report and stated that Dr. Slater had communicated with Dr. Beatty and asked for instructions, as the state board of health had previously notified the local board that if the slaughtified the local board that if the slaugh-ter houses were not improved and certain other limprovements made the state board would take action in the matter. This would be done, Dr. Clark said, but he proposed to have the local authorities attend to it. Mayor Frisby had not communicated with the state board at all in the matter. Dr. Clark, in answer to a guestion, stated that the city was although to apply it to our present day civilization would be to take an almost revolutionary step. Some excerpts from the sermon follow:

"We often hold a wrong conception of what is to be called a practical or workable ideal. We think that the only workable ideal. We think that the only workable ideal. We think that the only workable ideal we he compromise which does not disturb our comfortable and selfish everyday lives. But a gospel may be a practical gospel in a nobler sense. If its appeal is to the noble motives of life it is none the less practical if these motives are genuine. So it is with the gospel of Jesus. It is a workable gospel, a practical gospel, although it is too high for our undeveloped humanity to socially apply.

If a story of the western hills was ever actually enacted out under the blue sky as one was told under the limelight of the Grand's stage last night by Miss Dorothy Grey and her associates under the direction of F. W. Mann, one could understand perhaps an author's temerity in reproducing it for stageland.

However, doubts on the actuality of "As Told in the Hills" need trouble no one. Fortunately such terrible situations, plots and counter plots as Mr. Mann's company go through nightly are reserved exclusively for the mimic world. The program this week doesn't disclose the name of the playwright responsible for this thriller, and attention quickly settles on the alternation of the product of the produc dignation that a report reflecting on the sanitary conditions of the city should go out, and were of the opinion that Provo could do her own cleaning up.

In the matter of the slaughter houses, one may judge by the welcome the drama received at the hands of last night's audience.

There are Indian attacks on wagon trains, murders, kidnapings and at least three well defined love scenes running through the play.
